Introduction

Many crafts in current times are diminishing or are on the verge of it. Sustaining the tough competition from the giant retailers who are offering low maintenance and low cost products, has made it extremely difficult for the families involved with crafts and craft businesses to survive with their limited resources & product range. It is time to relook at our traditional crafts and practices involved in crafting them to come up with contemporary products that meet the needs of new age local and global markets.

Objectives

This Workshop aims to facilitate a platform wherein the participants are exposed to the design process. It includes tools and techniques, instrumental in understanding the crafts holistically, identifying the challenges and opportunities to come up with feasible design interventions.

Course Contents

The following topics (tentative) will be covered during the workshop:

- Understanding value propositions of traditional crafts
- Studying existing materials, processes, other resources
- Competitor Analysis
- Identifying Local and global markets
- Understanding user / customer
- Identifying new business opportunities
- Basics of artifact pricing

Methodology

- Lectures and Presentations
- Participatory group exercises
- Discussions on Case studies
- Project Based learning

The workshop is designed in such a way that the participants will be engaged in interactive sessions, will form groups and will work on specific assignments to find out scope for design interventions in the chosen craft/craft segment.
